We, the students of the Richmond Professional Institute of the College of William and Mary, take this opportunity to show our appreciation, and to give thanks to you who have done so much for us.

You, perhaps, more than any other faculty member have had the opportunity to influence us and help us to learn through your great wealth of knowledge concerning human behavior.

In leaving R. P. I. and our America, to return to your native Germany, we believe that it is your sincere hope to aid in strengthening better relations between the peoples of the world. May God speed you in your task.

To You

Dr. Curt Bondy

and to your mighty cause

The 1950 Wigwam

is most respectfully dedicated

The purpose of the Student Government organization is to maintain and strengthen a democratic relationship between the student body and the faculty, and to provide freedom in individual and group action as long as that action contributes to the welfare of the college.

STUDENT GOVERNMENT

This year the organization made leading strides under the capable leadership of "Banny" Bandoian and his efficient vice president, Robin Simons. Cathy Marlowe filled the position of secretary, and Bill Johnson served as treasurer.

SENIORS' FAREWELL

This is not the ending, but merely the beginning of our education. Let's not be like the college student who, upon graduation day, threw away her books and said, "Educated, thank God." Let's remember that "Education is what is left after the books have been put away." May we utilize what we have learned to help form a world where understanding predominates and peace lives.

The German Club was formed for the purpose of promoting social functions and for obtaining name bands to play at school dances.

Approximately two big dances are planned for each year with a number of smaller dances for Club members.

The League, which serves as the central organization of the various clubs in the five divisions of the Art and Drama Departments, concentrated on the further unification and enlightenment of its member groups this year.

ART STUDENTS' LEAGUE

It furthered the use of an exhibition gallery in the Gym building for the display of students' work, sponsored the successful and colorful Carnival in January, and once again presented the annual Costume Ball at the Mosque in April.

ADVERTISING ART CLUB

The function of the Advertising Art Club is to promote better relations between art classes, to afford a means by which art business and news may be discussed, to engage speakers on various occasions for the benefit of the students, to discuss any problems to be answered concerning their work.

During the year the Advertising Art Club has charge of the entertainment at the annual Carnival to raise money for the Mardi Gras, a masquerade sponsored by the entire Art Department.

FINE ARTS GROUP

The Fine Arts Group seeks to promote fellowship among students of painting, sculpture, crafts, industrial arts, and art education; and to further Fine Art activities on the campus. Monthly meetings include talks, movies, discussions and exhibits. Through co-operation with the Art Students' League, the group participates in the Carnival and the Mardi Gras. An auction of works done by members of the Fine Arts department and a yearly exhibit are two outstanding traditions.

DORM LIFE AT R. P. I.

The somber silence of dawn hovers over that group of buildings which house a great portion of the students of a great institution. This silence is broken only by the serene noise of the trash collectors as they quietly drag their cans across the alley in preparation for the new day. A penetrating sissing tries to drag me from the realms of Morpheus, I fight against it but in the end it succeeds, because it turns into a loud banging. The heat is going on. Oh, well, if winter comes, can summer be far behind? I snuggled deeper into the covers, when all at once there is a loud buzzing sound in my ears. I jumped out of bed, knowing that that knight in shining armor whom I've been trying to get to date me for three years is calling me. My mood is one of utter dejection when I discover that this noise is not the phone as I had suspected but only the alarm clock. As I stand there deciding it would be rather foolish to get back into bed, I heard some darn fool freshman down the hall singing. I groveled for the water spigot and promptly got soap in my eyes. Somehow I can't see a thing, oh now I remember, I forgot to turn the light on. As I reached for the light switch, some Zombie burst into my room knocking me and everything else askew. (Of course, you realize it is virtually impossible to get a dorm room any more messed up than it already is, but heck, I have to blame it on something.) She announces that it is time to arise. Eager Beavers, UGH!!!

I reached into the closet for the brown sweater I was planning to wear. It isn't there, my roommate has already donned it, so I scrambled in the closet for ten minutes more cussing her under my breath; and, I come forth dressed in the same darn outfit that I have been wearing for the last week. I'll try to look different tomorrow.

I stumbled down to the cafeteria; of course, there isn't a line so to speak. My eyes light up when I look at the menu and see that we are having eggs, bacon and doughnuts for breakfast. SOMETHING DIFFERENT FOR A CHANGE! As I come near the end of the line, I realize that I have forgotten my meal tickets, or was it that I had sold them to pay my Cotillion dues? Oh well, c'est 'n' important. I'll borrow them from my roommate, after all I use everything else she possesses.

Finally I have achieved a great feat—I, my dear fellows, am through the line. I only have five minutes to eat and get to class. I realize that this will result eventually in the complete ruination of my health, but I must get to class on time. After all, three lates constitute a cut, and I must save all of mine for that big week end at the University. Oh, didn't you know that I had been invited; that D. K. E. finally came through? I make a mental note to get my permission from mother.

Dashing into class, I find that the only empty seat is on the front row. I've got to keep myself awake by some means (this is quite a problem; one which is thoroughly understood by all of us who have suffered the ordeal of those darn eight o'clock classes) so I decide that I will knit. I take out my knitting, and the professor asks me a question. I promptly drop three stitches. After all, I've got to finish these argyles by Christmas.

I retire to the dorm, but the rank, rasping of the monotone, "Man on the Hall," unnerves me so much that I will try to get a foursome up for bridge in the day room. There I go dating myself again, I always forget it's Canasta these days.

Classes are over for the day; dinner is finished and so am I, so I make a mad scramble for the living room and for that height of all literary contributions to human society, the funnies.

And what did I discover—that some industrious student has cut out the ads on the other side for some class project. Now, I'll never know what Fabulous Jones looks like. Then my spirits lighten as I spot some foolish soul who has brought her cigarettes to the parlor. I run over to bum one, but some other twenty-five people have beat me to her. Next week I'll buy a pack; this going without cigarettes kills me.

The phone starts to ring, my ears prick up, but, of course, it isn't for me, or if it is it's just some fellow student wanting to know the next day's assignment which, of course, I don't know. Then those that are musically inclined gather around the piano. Not underestimating my own talents, I sit down to play. A sudden silence falls over the room. Ah ha, I have them spellbound. I turn around to take my bow, and I find that the room has most mysteriously emptied.

So I decide that I might as well go upstairs to my pursuit of knowledge. I've got only this left to pursue—you see it's the only thing that doesn't try to run while I'm in the act of pursuit. And God knows nothing tries to pursue me, since I've gotten to be a senior. Oh, for those good old days.

En route, I stop to chat with a friend. Our conversation is extremely graphic. It's got to be, you see it covers everything from MEN to MAN. After two hours, we have finally put the case to rest. Our conclusion is that all men are dopes. We reached this after much serious deliberation. Heck, they must be dopes because they never have realized what wonderful gals we are, in fact, they haven't even given us a second look so how can they ever realize it.

I reach my room, with all good intentions of studying, when the house phone rings. Someone wants me to take a blind date. I rationalize that I can study when I come in. Then I spend the next hour dreaming and running all over the dorm trying to find something to wear. I choose the dressiest dress I can find. Then I call down on the house phone to find if I can wear heels with the boy or not. You know how blind dates always overestimate their height. My date is a drip; and he only, after all of my prompting, "Wants to go to Joe's." Oh, well, tomorrow will be better. This dorm life, kid you've just got to rise above it.

Spanish is spoken at all meetings and no English is permitted. The consensus of opinion is that the Club is especially unique in that a member, through recreational and social functions, achieves conversational ability of a foreign language, which together with the grammar obtained in class, denotes a more thorough and complete language understanding.

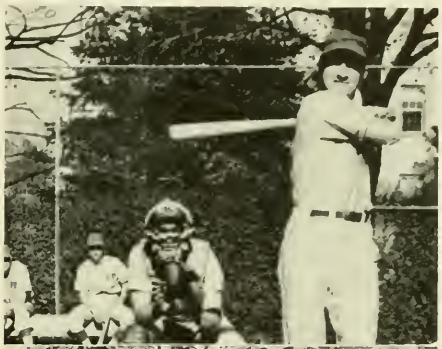
SOCCER TEAM

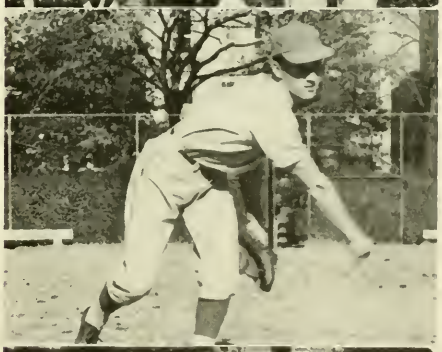
Co-Captains Joe Francis and Clyde Harding, J. Bucceroni, R. McCaffrey, Frank Lincoln, T. Schools, R. Feaster, J. Saker, L. Taylor, B. Smith, N. Coryea, R. Porter, W. Burrows, L. Aprahamian, C. Johnson

Playing a murderous schedule, including Southern Conference powers, the Devils failed to dent the win column in their second soccer season. With only six lettermen returning, Coach Reese was faced with the task of molding a squad which could withstand the well-drilled attacks of teams such as North Carolina State, University of North Carolina, University of Virginia and Washington and Lee. Although the Devils' potentialities were rated far below their opponents, they turned in impressive performances, so impressive that better-known soccer officials say that R. P. I. looms as a threat to the Southeast. The nucleo of team were Francis and Harding. Lincoln spearheaded the Devils' offense. Smith was defensive standout. Francis was voted the most valuable player.

BASEBALL TEAM

Catcher: Waters (.200); Infielders: Canada (.234), Birckhead (.214), Aprahamian (.385), Moughamian (.375), Fisher (.322); Outfielders: Harding (.372), Hardy (.204), Washer (.192), Overton (.333), Crosby (.136), Guild (.100) and Crump (000).





The most successful Green Devil activity from the standpoint of won-lost record was baseball. A blazing start had the Devils winning five out of six starts; however, costly injuries, coupled with an over-worked mound staff, plagued the team and the season ended with eight wins and seven losses. Leading batsman was Mouqhamian, who also scored the most runs. Harding was tops in home runs. Oliver had 3—0, and Critzer a 3—3 record as moundsmen. The latter was the workhorse of the diminutive staff, pitching 48 innings. Johnson recorded two wins against three setbacks.

BASKETBALL SQUAD

The Devil countmen probably will not finish the season with an impressive record; but this will not take any credit away from them. Rather, it shows the calibre of their opponents. Coach Reese, in his second year at the helm, had only two returning lettermen, but he was blessed with many promising freshmen. Since the squad loses just one player, Guild, the prospects for next year look excellent. Bedinger and Tester proved to be good floormen. Lane consistently was high scorer and the mainstay in many of the close ones. Gerwin's rebound work was all important. Machey, who joined the team at mid-season, proved to be a valuable asset.

WOMEN'S ATHLETICS

PLANNING FOR FUTURE SECURITY

Thousands of young men and women leave colleges and universities this year endowed with the many benifits higher education provides.

A large segment, many classmates of yours, owes the wealth of college training to life insurance purchased years ago by a loving parent or relative.

Life insurance guarantees many other personal ambitions, and its ownership will bring you the same satisfaction and security it now provides millions in all walks of life.
